

Nxesi's report will help clear the air!

The report on security upgrades at President Jacob Zuma's home by Public Works Minister Thulas Nxesi is welcomed.

And it helps to clear the air a bit.

Finally, the people will not have to rely on exaggerated allegations by the media on the subject.

The opposition has finally been exposed as riding on inflated stories about Zuma.

The minister is correct to say that the report will not be made public since this is an issue about the security of the president.

It would be foolish of the opposition to keep wasting time on an issue that will not be made public.

Even in our homes we never publicise what type of security measures we have put up for the simple reason that it would consequently jeopardise our safety.

DA's Lindiwe Mazibuko, for example, will never publicise the gadgets she has put up at her home for her safety.

She knows she would not do that, but for some reason she chooses to aim at exposing the president to security risk!

She is a security risk to the president and thus must be stopped!
