A Howick West family was thrilled recently when they received title deeds to their home of 30 odd years. MEC of Human Settlement and Public Works Ravi Pillay last Sunday personally handed over the deeds to Amursthalla and Kooshyalaveva Singh, marking the end of a long wait for them.

Pillay also handed over title deeds to the Bechu family, who have also waited several decades to gain official title to their homes. “These two Howick families were very lucky,” said Thulani Mthalane, local election team coordinator, who was present at the handover. “There are many reasons why people wait for their title deeds, one being a person dying before arranging beneficiaries or without leaving a will.”

Howick West alone has about 33 outstanding title deeds that are waiting for various documentation before they can be released.
