

Listen up, all you litterbugs in Park Rynie

EDITOR: Last week's front page article in the Mail, 'Rubbish rules in Park Rynie', covered an issue that has been a great nuisance to Park Rynie for a while.

I live in the area and every time I drive past the nursery and Department of Public Works buildings, I am forced to look at the rubbish lying on the ground between these two buildings, polluting our beautiful little coastal town.

I am so grateful to see that the gentleman from the nursery is picking up the rubbish on a regular basis, but I think it is so unfair that someone has to pick up after everyone else. I think it's high time that people start taking responsibility for their actions.

It starts with the little things – if we stop littering and start making proper uses of bins and stop chucking things out of car windows, then maybe we wouldn't have such problems.

Don't be selfish and create unnecessary work for others!
